

reigned sometimes. Since the general election has been commanded by Colonel Wicks, with Colonel Hooker and Little second in command, conditions have improved. It is unfortunate that American military regulations require the recall of officers too soon. If the same men who were here in 1915 could have stayed until now the country would have been better off.

The President expressed satisfaction with the entire present military regime. He left the inference that former regimes had in some cases lacked discipline. Certain acts and irresponsible killings by the marines had been investigated, the President said, and although the crimes were confirmed, he did not know of any case in which punishment had been meted out to the perpetrators.

Naval Inquiry Held Fatally

The President's entire conversation indicated his belief that the present naval board inquiry would be futile because of its limited scope and because the entire source of Hayti's trouble was other than military. He recognized the fact, however, that the misdoings of the military had served to focus attention for the first time on the island and thus the real troubles had come to light.

My interview with the President was brought to an end by the entrance of an officer of the marines, who was visibly embarrassed by Mr. Dartigue's candor.

Mr. Baillly-Blanchard, when apprised of the charges made against him and Mr. Melhenny, declined to see The Tribune correspondent.

President Dartigue promised to give out in writing Monday morning a detailed statement of the complaints lodged against the American officials.

Baillly-Blanchard Has Record of Thirty-five Years; Melhenny Rough Rider With Roosevelt

The two American officials in Hayti whose conduct was objected to by President Dartigue in an interview yesterday with The Tribune correspondent in Port-au-Prince—Arthur Baillly-Blanchard, the American Minister, and Colonel John Avery Melhenny, special financial adviser—have both been long in the service of the United States government.

Mr. Baillly-Blanchard has been Minister to Hayti for six years and has been in the American diplomatic service for thirty-five years, having begun as private secretary to the Minister to France. Much of his subsequent experience was as secretary, for he served in that capacity on the Commission to the Paris Exposition in 1889, on the Behring Sea tribunal of arbitration, on the bimetallic mission to France in 1896, with John W. Foster on his special ambassadorial mission to Russia in 1897, at the Hague conference in 1907, and on four other separate occasions at the United States embassy in Paris and for two years in Tokyo.

Colonel Melhenny has been in Hayti only a little more than a year, having given up his place as head of the Civil Service Commission to accept the appointment as financial adviser. He served on the commission from 1901 to 1919. Previously he had been prominent in state politics in Louisiana, where he has been a member of both the House of Representatives and the Senate. He was a member of Theodore Roosevelt's Volunteer cavalry in the Rough Riders in the Spanish War and was promoted to gallantry in the battle of San Juan Hill.

100 YEARS Furriers Exclusively

IN 1820 Christian G. Gunther founded a fashionable fur establishment at 46 Maiden Lane. As the business prospered and the trend of trade moved northward in 1866 the business was transferred to 502 and 504 Broadway, and later, in 1876, to 184 Fifth Avenue. Still following the remarkable growth of Manhattan, the store again, in 1909, was moved to its present address. The policy of the Gunther store has been to offer only reliable furs in the latest and most approved styles at moderate prices.
